Butane gas shortage calls for conservation

Mr. N. C. McAlpin attended a meeting of Mississippi farmers this week to discuss the situation in Jackson this week. At the meeting, he discussed the shortage of butane gas in the area and the potential impact on farming operations.

Supplies of butane gas for McGee & Co. appear to be adequate for the Jackson area, but an unusual shortage would be experienced in the use of butane gas and the need for more than is actually needed could be remedied by one's own supply.

TO REMODEL PICTURE SHOW

Mr. Tracy Barnett, owner of the New Theatre, said this week that the use of butane gas for heating purposes would be doubled. He also discussed the need for more than is actually needed and the potential impact on farming operations.

New upholstery will be used in the back of the theatre, and a new seating capacity will be added to the theatre. The show Saturday night will end at 10:30, and the seating capacity will be doubled.
