On July 22nd, the third annual March of Remembrance, will commemorate the 72nd anniversary of the beginning of the liquidation of the Warsaw Ghetto. We will walk through the streets of the former ghetto, paying homage and tribute to what was once the largest Jewish community in prewar Europe – to the 300,000 Jews of Warsaw.

This year’s March is dedicated to Emanuel Ringelblum, the creator of Warsaw’s Ghetto clandestine archive, and thus the March will end at the square next to Nowolipki Street, where one of the caches of Ringelblum’s Archives was recovered after the war. These archives constitute the richest source of knowledge about the holocaust of Polish Jews.

What we couldn’t scream out to the world we had buried in the ground.
